

BREAKFAST RESUCE

Written by

Jillian Hauk, Christopher Chin, Connor Morrison

Cchin060502@gmail.com
908-399-7368

FADE IN:

1 INT. HALLWAY - MORNING 1

60's style house, light shines in through the window, a bird chirps. PETER, 7, a caucasian brunette boy, plays with a rocket ship running around the corner into the hall. *

PETER
Broom zurrz zoom!

Peter closes in on his sister's door, sounds of crying become louder. Perplexed, Peter peaks through the cracked door.

2 INT. KATIE'S BEDROOM - CONTINUOUS 2

A typical 60s teenage girl's room, posters on the wall of music artists and movies, soft colors. Katie, 16, a caucasian black haired girl, sobs.

Peter enters.

KATIE (O.S.)
Get out!

Peter darts. Katie whips a pillow at the door. It SLAMS.

3 INT. HALLWAY - CONTINUOUS 3

Peter brainstorms. Lightbulb! Breakfast with a smiley face pancake appears in his thoughts. He shines a devious grin.

4 INT. KITCHEN - MORNING 4

Peter suits up with his apron. He slams a book upside down. *

MONTAGE:

-He opens it. Traces his hand on the images of ingredients. *

He can't be bothered to read and tosses it. *

-He turns on the TV -- a CHEF explains breakfast onscreen.

TV CHEF
Hello everybody, my name is Mr.
Gopnik. On this wonderful day we'll be making a simple pancake breakfast. This American classic is a great choice...

-Peter struggles to grab flour.
-Mixes eggs to heavy splashing. Egg shells in the batter.
-Tries to start the stove. Peter jumps at the flame.
-Too much butter.
-Fries the pancakes, they start to smoke.
-Coffee brews. Overflows.

TV CHEF.

And that's how you make a perfect pancake breakfast.

The video shows a perfect breakfast, comparably, Peter's final product -- slightly burnt, powdery, and a sloppy smile made from syrup. The mug of coffee has brown stains around it. Peter is satisfied.

5 INT. KATIE'S BEDROOM - MORNING

5

Katie still sobs. The door hesitantly cracks.

KATIE

(yelling)

I said get-

She looks over at Peter.

*

Peter holds the tray. A small smile forms on Katie's face.

Peter sets the tray in front of her. Katie wipes her tears and takes a bite of the crunchy pancakes.

She pulls him in for a snuggle.

FADE TO BLACK.